

Description

With the vigorous development of customized sheet metal box fabrication in our country, sheet metal processing parts are widely used because of their light weight, high precision and good appearance. Among them, sheet metal fabrication parts welding is an essential step in the sheet metal fabrication process. It connects two separated metal objects by means of pressure or heating to generate interatomic bonding force and connect them into one, so as to achieve The purpose of processing is to weld the side seam of a single part to increase its strength.
